COUNTING BALLOTS

FIVE CLERKS EMPLOYED IN THE WORK YESTERDAY.

All Classes of the Public Schools Have Become Interested in the Competition.

"Business High School sets a style," said one of the counters in Room 100, Star building, yesterday, as package after package of ballots was taken up to be verified. "All the five-vote coupons are carefully separated from the one-votes, and both kinds are made up into 100 vote packages, with a typewritten label pasted about them: "Business High School. Sunday Star coupons. No. votes, 100," or the same with the change to 'Daily Star:' and, better than the business neatness, is the business correctness. There is almost never a miscount in a Busi-and casting his eyes over the clerks who make no pause even as they lean forward to moisten their fingers on the wet sponges, could fail to believe that the "youngsters" are getting hold of every coupon.

"It is a splendid scheme," says Mr. Wilson, principal of the Central High School.

"It is proving a wonderful stimulus to school loyalty."

Mr. Wilson should know, for he bore a great burden of votes with him.

Relief of Orpheus.

The relief of Orpheus, Euridice and Hermes from the National Museum, Naples, exists in three different copies, and is one of the best known and most popular works of ancient art. The other two copies are at Paris and Rome. The Parislin copy, from which the photograph is taken, bears the modern and erroneous inscription of Amphion, Antiope and Zethos. The scene carries its own interpretation. The theme is treated with the utmost simplicity and tenderness and as in other works from the age of Phidias the tendency of the best Greek art to moderate the external manifestation of emotion, is evidenced. There is no distortion of features, no frantic gesture, no abandon and yet the very self-re-straint renders the scene more pathetic and affecting.

The beautiful relief is one of a large class of sepulchral reliefs in Attic style, many of which have been discovered lately in the Ceramicus in Athens. Both figures, Orpheus and Eurydice, who were to the Grees the very types of conjugal fidelity, are copied on sepulchral unit now in the museum on the Accarelle.

General and Personal News Gathered in Suburban Town.

The street car problem that three months ago involved the citizens of Anacostia, officials of the Anacostia and Potomac River Railroad Company and the Commissioners of the District in a triangular controversy bids fair to be obliterated from memory in a few days. As the inclement season is at hand, when patrons of the street cars object to leaving the cars and tramping across the bridge when the number of passengers exceeds forty, citizens of the town determined to ask the Commissioners to make the limit fifty passengers per car and increase the speed of the cars to eight miles an hour in crossing. The charges on which these officers are to be tried grew out of a recent occurrence at the New York navy yard, in which, it is alleged, they infringed upon the duties of other officers. other officers.

According to the story, when these of-ficers reached the entrance to the yard at night they ordered the suspension of the night they ordered the suspension of the sergeant on duty in charge of the guard, on the ground that he had been drinking, and ordered a corporal to relieve him. The ser-geant questioned their right to relieve him under the circumstances, and refused to leave his post except upon the order of the officer of the guard. A controversy arose between the commissioned officers and noncommissioned officers. As a consequence the two commissioned officers have been ordered to trial by court-martial to determine the extent of their alleged culpability.

setum on the Acropolis.

The myth is well known. When the beautiful Eurydice died, Orpheus followed her to the infernal regions and by the irresistible power of his lyre moved the stern hearts of Persephone and even of Pase don himself.

The local committee representing the national committee on this great Jewish celebration, which will be observed in all parts of the United States, is composed of Messrs.

Simon Wolf, Emil Berliner, A. S. Solomons, Coi. C. H. Lauchheimer and Dr. Milton The local committee representing the na-Rosenau. A meeting of this committee was held last night at the house of Mr. Berliner. The arrangement for the Washington ob-servance provides for anniversary services Friday, November 24, in the Washington Hiebrew Temple, on 8th street northwest. The orators of the occasion will be District Commissioner Henry B. F. Macfarland and

Mr. Simon Wolf.

The addresses will, it is said, be descrip tive of the remarkable progress of the Hebrew race in this country. The speakers will also touch upon the Jewish soldiers who served with the flag from the Revolution to the war with Spain.

Thanksgiving day there will be supplemental services at the Eighth Street Temple commemorative of the 250th anniversary of the first landing of the Jews. Addresses on this occasion will be made by Rabb's Stern and Simon and others. each occasion a special program of music will be rendered by the choir. This service will be combined with the usual Thanks-giving celebration at the temple.

Will Attend New York Exercises. Mr. Wolf informed a Star reporter last night that the Washington committee, headed by himself, will attend the big anniversary meeting to be held Thanksgiving night under the auspices of the national committee at Carnegie Hail, New York city. The general committee is headed by Jacob H. Schiff, while associated with him are Dr. Cyrus Adler, Prof. Jacob H. Hollander and Oscar S. Straus. This body has requested every Jewish congregation in the United States to hold appropriate anniversary services. The Council of Jewish Women, the circles of the Jewish Chautauqua Society, the Young Men's Hebrew Association, the Jew-ish orphan asylums and similar organizations will participate, and it is planned to make the ecasion one of the greatest of the history of the race in America.

It will be sought to show the Jewish influence and prosperity since 1655, when the Dutch West India Company granted the Hebrews certain privileges and when their number here was small, to the present time, when the Jewish population of the United States is estimated at 1,253 213 souls, against 3,000 in 1818, and 6,000 in 1823. It is said the first colony of Jews settled in Maryland.

DEATH OF JOHN BUTLER.

Butler was venerable and colored. He was born in Georgetown in 1831, when that place was a port of much importance and sailing ships came up the Potomac laden with cargoes of every description. When Butler was a boy he played about the wharves of old Georgetown and used to wonder at the great water birds-as he termed the ships-with their great stretches of white wings. In the 50's he was known as "John But-ler, the hack driver." He owned his own team, and his passengers were often re-galed by the droll stories that the driver told of men and things in the olden time. In his time John "hacked" many noted men. One of his regular customers was Samuel Ward, familiarly known as "Uncle Sam,' who gave many famous dinners at Welcker's, at that time the Delmonico's of

Mr. Ward was the medium through which Butler came in touch with a number of the great men of this nation. Among these were Secretary of War Stanton, Gen. Gar-field, Samuel Hooper, Gen. U. S. Grant, Gen. Robert E. Schenck, Senator Bayard, William M. Evarts, J. Ward McAllister, Samuel J. Randall, John Morrisey, when a member of Congress; also Sir Edward Thornton, British minister, and the Earl of Dunrayen. All of these and others rode in John's back at different times and praised the old man for his courteous attention. On one occasion when Gen. Grant reached Washington unexpectedly to his friends and early in the morning, he asked for John Butler's team. John drove the hero of Appointant from the Baltimore and Office depot to his home, then on I street near New Jersey avenue northwest. Gen. Grant handed Butler a $5 bill, but the driver refused to accept more than his rightful fare, $2.50, exclaiming as he shoved

the money in his pocket:
"General, I would not have missed this job for $50. After Daniel E. Sickles had shot Philip Barton Key the meals of the former were carried to him regularly by Butler. He also numbered among his patrons Thad, Stevens and former War Secretary William H.

The "proud fathers" of Washington have had an interesting proposition made to them by the People's Savings Bank, at 610 14th street. It offers to open savings accounts for 1,000 children under twelve years of age, and will credit each child with a $5 deposit, provided its father will deposit $4.50 in cash and a coupon, which is to be found in another column of The Sunday The idea is distinctly new and has attracted considerable attention

The body of the man that was taken from the river near 27th, and G streets northwest yesterday afternoon, as stated in yesterday's Star, was identified at the morgue last night as that of John C. Foley. He was a dairyman at 220 Trumbull street and drove his own team. Two weeks ago he disappeared from home and nothing had since been heard from him. Last night a son of the deceased called at the morgue and was much overcome to find the decom-posed body of his father. He thinks his father accidentally fell overboard and was drowned.
